

Call for applications for new positions in the EANO Youngsters 2022-2024

Dear EANO Members,

The EANO Youngsters provides a platform for networking, interaction and collaboration between young scientists and clinicians with a special interest in Neuro-Oncology. The EANO Youngsters Track during the Scientific Meeting is only one of our successful projects. We also organize well-attended tumorboard webinars, closely collaborate with the Educational Committee in the organization of the EANO Mentorship Program, the Educational day and other educational activities, and are active on Social Media. Importantly, the EANO Youngsters committee aims to represent the diversity of EANO with a lot of different specialties involved in Neuro-Oncology as well as to represent the different scientific interest from a clinical as well as a translational and basic science viewpoint.

To further broaden the projects of the EANO Youngsters Committee, we are looking for new motivated members with new ideas for projects, initiatives and actions to improve networking, interactions and collaborations between young scientists with a special interest in Neuro-Oncology. EANO Youngsters Committee does not focus on scientific projects, but aims to increase the involvement of young members in the EANO society. The duration of the position is 2 years, with the possibility of one re-election.

If you have an idea for the EANO Youngsters Committee, you are under 35 years old and want to join the EANO Youngster Committee, please send your proposal along with a short motivation letter and CV at the latest by May 15th, 2022 to youngsters@eano.eu. Early career basic scientists (e.g. PhD candidates) are especially encouraged to apply.

Applications will be reviewed by the current EANO Youngster Committee and new members will be invited based on the project idea, regional/gender/professional background diversity.
