ASEICA-YOUTH
PROMOTES YOUNG TALENT AND
THE CONTACT BETWEEN YOUNG
RESEARCHERS IN ONCOLOGY

WELCOME YOUNG TALENT

ASEICA-Joven is a working group within ASEICA. It is formed by young researchers specialized in cancer research that are at different stages of their careers, from doctoral students to principal investigators. We believe that it is important to promote young talent and the contact between our scientific community.

We want to involve the young people of ASEICA (students, predocs, postdocs and young PIs) in the activities of the Association. Young researchers are the future of our country, but they are also the weakest link in the scientific system. Lack of opportunities, professional instability and lack of funding are problems that hamper their careers and, in many cases, lead to a significant loss of very talented young researchers. ASEICA-Joven originated to claim and to actively respond to solve these problems.

OBJECTIVES:

To promote initiatives that help the professional development of the youngest members of ASEICA

To make visible and to promote young researchers' investigation and their professional successes

To propose and to defend measures that respond to the professional needs of young researchers in the area of oncology

To be meeting point for young researchers who work in Spain and abroad

We have created several working groups within ASEICA-Joven that are already fully operational and that support younger researchers depending on the stage of their professional career:

► ASEICA Predoc

It channels the concerns and claims of younger researchers, with the aim of promoting the association and camaraderie among them. In addition, ASEICA Predoc wants to consolidate a network of predoctoral researchers in Spain that works as a tool for academic and personal support.

► ASEICA Postdoc

It seeks to vindicate the role of postdoctoral researchers in the society. It gives support to the ASEICA's postdocs that need some kind of help in this professional stage. ASEICA Postdoc organizes activities to build a large network of collaboration and mutual help among its members. In addition, it serves to maintain ties with postdocs who are abroad and want to return to Spain.

► ASEICA Young PIs

This group was born with the aim of promoting interaction between Young Principal Investigators to help each other in various aspects of their professional career.
